

3P Learning Anti-Cheating Policy

Keeping the playing field level

3P Learning supports equal opportunity for all students and keeping a level playing field – where cheating is banned – is an important part of that equality. While a small number of students occasionally cheat, a huge majority play within the rules: on a level playing field. 3P Learning strongly supports those students playing within the rules, and we're underscoring that with our updated anti-cheating policy.

What is cheating?

Cheating is any behavior that unfairly increases a student's score or disadvantages another student, whether in Live Mathletics or curriculum activities within Mathletics, or in other 3P products like Readwriter and Spellodrome.

How does 3P keep the playing field level?

3P is constantly on the lookout for evidence of cheating and we make best efforts to update the software regularly to foil cheats; loopholes are fixed and counter-measures deployed to make cheating impossible or impractical.

When we identify cheating behavior, we log details of the event and take steps to remove scores associated with the activity so that cheats cannot appear on the Hall of Fame leaderboard. With instances where we identify continued cheating behavior we may additionally contact schools or parents.

This approach is a low-key way of keeping teachers/parents in the loop and supporting you in applying the policy that's relevant at your school or in your home.

How can students help us keep a level playing field?

Students: honest players rule, cheats just aren't cool. Hacking (although it sounds fun and OK) at the end of the day is still cheating. So be true to your friends, your classmates, to worldwide Live Mathletics competitors and to yourself. Just don't cheat (or hack)!! Inspire your friends to follow your positive example. Be a leader.

How can teachers and parents help us keep a level playing field?

We encourage teachers and parents to have honest conversations with their students so that they understand what is expected from them. We will do all we can to block and discourage cheating activity and the rest is up to you. We do respectfully ask you to remind students of the negative aspects of cheating.

Thank you from the 3P Learning team.